

Can You Find Me?

Here are some clues to the different animals and plants roaming around in the exhibits. Use the hints to figure out which description goes with which animal. Use the word bank for help.

SUMMER

• Old fire sites are where I thrive. In the summer I come alive. My bright pink color covers the ground. Large open spaces are where I am found.

What am I? _____

• I live in a pack with my family; my mom, my dad, and my siblings, you see. Sometimes I snarl, sometimes I growl. Sometimes I bark, and sometimes I howl.

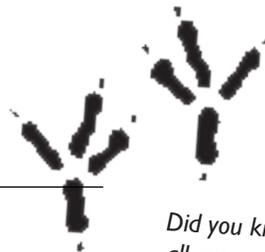

Did you know that dogs are a domesticated version of me?

What am I? _____

• I like to soar way up high. You should look for me up in the sky. Great American stories I behold. My head is white, but I'm not old.

What am I? _____

Did you know that out of all my senses, sight is my strongest? I can see my prey up to 2 miles away!

AUTUMN

• “Dee! Dee! Dee!” is my song. I sing it all day long. My black and white body is little and round. I may be small but I sing so loud. I cache my seeds for a winter meal, and hope they don't become a steal.

• The pond is where I am when I'm building my dam. I use my teeth with ease for chopping down big, big trees.

What am I? _____

Did you know that my teeth are always growing? If I didn't use them as much as I do, they would grow right out of my mouth!

• I'm skinny and tall and not that small. I grow in harsh places and live in tight spaces. In the winter I am seen because my needles stay green.

What am I? _____

• Big animals are what I eat, but I wouldn't turn down a tiny treat. If I had to choose, I'd pick berries and snooze, all in the summer heat.

What am I? _____

Hint: My hair is shaggy and "grizzled," which gives me my name!

WINTER

• In the summer I'm brown and in the winter I'm white. I'll hop away if you give me a fright. You might confuse me with a rabbit, but that's just a bad habit.

What am I? _____

• My colors grace the winter sky. To find me you must look up high. My lights parade red, green, and blue. Caught a glimpse of me? Lucky you!

What am I? _____

• My long legs help me walk. The willows are where I stalk. In the summer my antlers grow, and in the winter they leave with the snow.

Hint: I am the largest of the deer family.
